Tom Welter,

Sean McHugh enrolled this summer at Edison High School. As a summer transfer to a private school during the summer, he is immediately eligible to play. However, he did not pass 5 classes last semester and he $\frac{1}{2}$ credit short on being on track to graduate. At Edison, a student must have 24 credits to graduate or 4.5 to start their sophomore year. Sean has 4.0 credits.

You can read the explanation from his parent's letter and the principal at Edison High School. We at Jesuit feel that Edison is the right fit for Sean. He struggles with ADHD, depression and anxiety. Edison's small classes and expertise in addressing learning differences should quickly get Sean back on track to a successful academic path.

His parents say that sports is an important part of Sean's emotional health, and we are hoping he can participate on our JV football team.

Please let me know if you have any questions.
