To Whom It May Concern,

Garrett Padgett is a young man who has currently returned to public school after being placed in a day treatment program. The youth was transitioned to Karios earlier this year to help him and his family to address behavioral issues within the home. As a result of the behavior Garrett was best suited for Kairos so he could obtain skills that will help him in his educational goals long term. Unfortunately for Garrett his short term academics struggled and he will need to make up some work which he is willing to do. As part of Garrett's increased reformation in the home and school he should be allowed to actively participate in extracurricular activities at school. This should enable Garrett the opportunity to find a greater connection with the school and his local community. In actively participating in sports we hope he improves his academic achievement, gains a higher self-esteem, and has fewer behavioral problems. I highly recommend Garrett be allowed to participate. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
