To Whom It May Concern,

Last February, due to conflict at home and at school, the decision was made to move my sister, Cierra Starr, up to Oregon to live with my husband and I. She was struggling to be successful in school and in some of her relationships. This move has proven to be beneficial and it has been reflected in all areas of her life, including academic. She re-did her second semester as a homeschool student through an online high school program and her grades have improved significantly.

Last Spring, Cierra was able to participate in Track and Field through Beaverton High School. Participating in sports has helped her develop perseverance, motivation, hard work and friendships and a sense of community in her new environment. Cierra recently made the team for volleyball at Beaverton High School and would love to be eligible to compete this year in volleyball and other sports. We hope you will consider providing an exception to her both being a homeschooled student as well as an exception to her grades upon leaving her last public high school. Her grades through her homeschool online school program more accurately reflect her recent improvement and success.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Krissi Callahan

To Whom It May Concern,

Last school year I was struggling at home and school. In February 2015 my family made the decision to have me move in with my sister and her family. After the move I went into online school and was able to raise my grades significantly. Sports have always been a positive influence on my life. I love playing sports and I hope to continue participating in them at Beaverton. Please make an exception for me to play sports with Beaverton High School this year. Thank you.

Sincerely,
