

About a year ago I was off to a really bad start in life. I wanted to be on my own, And do what I wanted to do my dad's rules were not ones that I ~~agreed~~ ^{agreed} with a lot of the time, so I decided to move out my only other option was to move back in with my mother, which lives in California and again was off to a bad start mother was struggling financially. I tried to get a job but the guy that gave me rides stop working at the shop I was working at. I started to hang out with a bad group of kids that liked to party and also mixed up in gangs. And one day I had a reality check and realized what I ~~was~~ ^{was} doing was wrong. I had stop going to ~~school~~ ^{school} and had no job. And realize with out an education you won't get far in life. Now I'm doing better I go to church. And I have good friends. I thank god for getting me out of a pit darkness.
