Last year was one of the toughest times of my life. My dad and mom had their divorce and that was a very tough time considering the way it happened. After the divorce I had to squat in the house that my family lived in for 3 months into my Barlow year until my dad could find a suitable home close to Reynolds high school. When he did we moved right away and enrolled into Reynolds. Considering the situation I think I'm eligible to play and would be thankful for the opportunity. I know that's at a mid year transfer but most of things I didn't want happening and I had no control over so I don't know why this would be an issue.
