

Harsh Letter

To Whome This Addresses

Through out my sons life sports has always been his way of venting. When something disturbed him, he would go for a long run, and when he came back I always knew he had either solved the issue or moved on. Due to the state of the relationship between his mother and I, him and his siblings were taken into the custody of CPS. This caused immense turmoil in the young boys life, as is expected. Inevitably this led to a variety of bad habits being exposed to him. I know that being an athlete has given him a purpose, goals, and a set of values to go by. Moving to Oregon has strengthened his drive to succeed, and he plans to try as hard as he can from now on.
