RE: Jaylon Minneweather:

To whom it may concern:

It is my understanding that Jaylon is anxious to be part of the Football team there at Madison High School. I also understand that for this to happen: he requires a letter detailing reasons that may have contributed to his school performance this past year.

Jaylon is the oldest child in a single parent household. During the time he attended David Douglas High School his mom worked nights at Providence hospital and returned home in the mornings.

Jaylon has three other siblings, (all younger than himself) who depended upon Jaylon while mom was at work. Jaylon missed many classes due to fatigue, probable stress and just being late to class. He also endured close family death and other familial problems during the past school year.

He is a quiet young man and does not talk much about his deep feelings and I believe that is one reason sports are so important to him. They have always been.

Situations have turned around at this point and family life is more normal. Mom does not need to depend so heavily upon Jaylon and he can now concentrate on school and being a good student.

Thank you for your time and attention to this matter.

Sincerely,
