

To Whom It May Concern,

10/8/2015

I am a Special Educator at Redmond High School. I work with William Blank, is a new student to RHS from Saint Helen's High School. Last year, William did not earn the required amount of passing grades to participate in athletics here at RHS.

There are some changes that have occurred for William since last school year. First he is now living with his mother, and not his father. The difference here is that his mother is a better support for him, and he is getting to school everyday on time. Second, he is accessing services for his IEP. William is part of a co-taught Algebra 1 class with me and General Education Math teacher. Also, William has one period of his day where he works directly with a Special Educator to complete, relearn, or ask questions about his given assignments.

William will continue these courses and daily check-ins with me, his case manager, throughout the school year. As of today, 10/07/15, he is passing all five of his classes with C- or higher.

William earned 2.25 credits 9th grade year. He is projected to earn 8 credits his 10th grade year. By continuing with his grades, he will bring himself back on track to graduate Spring of 2019.

Sincerely,
