

My highschool career started out pretty good. I was on a state championship football team. As a freshman I didnt really care about my grades. After failing just about every class first semester I knew I had to do better. So second semester I passed all my classes. In the summer after my freshman year I moved to stayton to live with my mom because me and my dad werent getting along. My moms wasnt much better because she was never there. So I could do as I wanted. after a couple weeks in stayton I just stopped going. So I decided that I was done with high school, so I dropped out and went for my GED. I went to the wolly center after spending two months in califonia. Right before the summer of my Junior year my dad left and went to florida to sail his boat. leaving me homeless. I was homeless for about a month or so, then I meet Goldie Siebentaler. Goldie siebentaler is the mom of my friend from kindergarden Jordan Siebentaler. she took me in and saged I could stay there till im on my feet.

around that time I decided that my GED is not enough for me and that I want to graduate from highschool. My Junior year went well I made up 3 classes and passed all of my classes the whole year. Also in my Junior year I helped with the special olympics witch was an awesome opportunity. Now in my senior year I have already made up 3 classes. Im going to be continuing to make up classes and working towards my diploma. It would be awesome I on top of that I get to do sports with the FHS I grew up with.

Sincerely
