To whom it may concern:

I'm writing this letter for Amir Walker. I have known Amir for many years and know about the hardship that he has had in his life for the last couple of years. Amir Walker was living with his mother, and had a lot of stress in his life due to his home environment. Amir did not have any structure and was caught up in living in an unstable environment. Amir had some academic struggles and I know it was due to this student being overwhelmed with problems and a stressful home life that any student would have a hard time keeping their grades up. Amir is currently living full time with his father now and is in a different school district. Amir is an exceptional athlete and it will better serve this student athlete to be able to participate in sports as he is now in a stable environment, living in a home where there is structure and lots of love. I'm asking that this student receive an exception due to the hardships that he was having in his home life and is allowed to participate in sports which is another outlet and a motivation piece to help him recover from the hardships that he has been faced with.
