To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing this letter to talk to you about why I think I should be allowed to play basketball even though my grades were bad last year.

Last year I had bad grades because I didn't try like I should have. It was a hard year for me in school and I had to adjust my habits. I had never had to really study before so I had to make some changes. This year I am really focused in school and doing better than I have in a really long time. I study every night and have been doing well in all of my classes.

I would really like to play and be taken off of suspension because this is my team. I have grown up with all of these boys and been playing basketball with them since I was in the first grade. They are my family and brothers. I am committed to my team and have been for 12 years now. We have always been there for each other and supported each other. This is my last year to play with them. I realize now that the choices I made with school last year are affecting me now and I have tried really hard to change that.

All though I am not playing right now I show up to every practice ready to work and am at every game to support my team mates and brothers. I really would like the opportunity to prove to you all that I can be a part of my team and keep my grades up while doing so. To be an example to my team and the other teams that things can get turned around if you work hard enough.

Thank you for your time and consideration in allowing me to play.

Thank You,

Chase Robbins
