

To whom it may concern,

2/29/16

My son, Cary Hueck, is hoping to be able to compete in track this spring. He is short a credit but please understand my son has overcome many obstacles this past year. Last year he went to live with his bio-logical father, and older stepmother. His grades and attendance was non-existent when living with his father.

My son has made great strides this year in his academic goals. In fact, this year is his best year to date when it comes to his grades. He is working on being more responsible and dependable. He is striving to become a man and learn about life. Being able to play/compete in sports this spring is extremely important to him and as his mother, I fully support his efforts.

Sincerely,
Cary Hueck
