

To whom it may concern,

The past few years of high school have been all over the place for me. I struggled with going to classes and making good grades/choices. I was sent to a wilderness program last March to help me get it together. From there they decided to send me to The Academy at Sisters here in Bend. Being here this past year has taught me so much. It's given me the opportunity to set my priorities straight and live by the right things. I'm not only showing up to class now but I'm participating and putting forth my best effort. I would like to participate in track to be more involved in school activities. I also value health and fitness. So it definitely seems like a great opportunity for me. Thank you for your time.
